November 12, 2023 at Barkhausen Waterfowl Preserve, while following up on a lead from a mysterious invitation that I received from one "Dr. A." I stumble across the annual community project and campfire program of Pack 4031.

Just as I am coming down a path I hear the name of my trusted photographic minded assistant, Specs Runner.

With his camera in hand, he answered questions to none other than Dr. Godrick Auvem. Then, the world-renowned adventurer Danny Jones was called forth to give the latest recount his latest trek through the jungle to hunt and tame another of his bearded, scaly beasts. I was called forth and questioned by the doctor. It seems that he was testing us all, but we still do not know to what end. What dastardly plans could he have in store.

I began with leading the group to answer the question What you would do with a Velociraptor early in the morning, followed by Danny Jones ode to his most beloved snack, Bananas.

Many tasks of bravery and cunning were performed by the pack including an endless march by the Tigers until the last one was done.

The Arrow of Light girls must have something to do with the funding of this whole expedition as they swindled the boys out of all of their gold.

All-in-all, the Pack seems up for any task that might be thrown their way. Yard work, if they can get the mower started, Chasing Penny and many other tasks.

There are still many questions that remain unanswered about this Dr. Auvem. How does he know what dinosaur breath smells like and why would he be making tooth paste for them? How is it that he could make snow from just a little water and sprinkle it on a volcano to add realism to the high peaks? Also, just how did he shrink down that volcano and make it erupt on the table for all of us to see as it burst forth with foamy lava.

I had many questions I wanted to ask, but a wild pack of dinosaurs chased Dr. Auvem off before I was able to get my answers.

It was a good day at Barkhausen and after interviewing the staff there they continue to be amazed with the work that Pack 4031 is able to get done when they give back to the community and help out the waterfowl preserve. It was a good thing that Hot Chocolate and S'mores were plentiful to boost everyone's energy after the hard work and trama caused by this Godrick Auvem who keeps plaguing this den.
